DEAR SIR-A man reporting to me di ectly from Memphis, represents that cases of yellow tever in some instances are not reported. He stated as knowing positively of one case, a Mrs. Mcore, the wife of one of Oliver, Finnie & Co.'s employes. Personally I attach no importance to such tales, but would be pleased to know if you cannot officially deny the above. I have the honor to remain respectfully, WM. J. REYNOLDS, Major of Corinth.

MEMPHIS, July 16, 1879. W. T. Reynolds, Mayor of Corinthe DEAR SIR-Mr. Langstaff has just sen me your letter relative to a statement that cases of yellow-fever are occurring in this city and are not reported. The statement of your informant is utterly false. Mrs. Moore is a patient of mine, and is about well of an attack of intermittent fever of two days duration. All well authenticated cases of yellowfever shall be reported officially. There have been no cases reported since the tenth instant. Young Ray is now the only case of fever in our city. We do not expect any spread of the disease, and consider it perfectly safe for persons to go and come. Our city will be sent whirling and eddying down to Wolf river. Letter from a Distinguished Physician Offering some Suggestions Touching the Yellow-Fever-How it May be Stamped out and Avoided.

NASHVILLE, July 14 .- I am tempted offer, through you, some suggestions to the people of your city, who from choice or necessity will remain and brave the risk of an epidemic of yellow fever. In the first place I am of the opinion that the disease will not First-For want of general co-operating uses, embraced under the term "epidemic tendency;" and Second—For a well founded belief that the disease can be easily controlled and held to its present limits by disinfectants and ordinary sanitary precautions. But sanitary measures should be vigorous ly carried out to prevent the poison gaining access to spots favorable for its propagation. There are doubtless many places in your limits where the germs could maintain a more or less active existence, if once allowed to become domiciled, and could do some mis chief to those who come within the sphere of their existence. The poison, I take it, is jus as active and virulent this year as it was las year, the only difference being in the quantity or extent of diffusion. It is always dangerous, the sporadic form as much so to the individual affected as the epidemic; the cases developed this season prove that proposition. The spread of the disease is not due to the quality of the poison, but to the concours of certain meteorological conditions which favor the various stages of its natural existence. The poison does not originate in terrene or atmospheric conditions; it merely owes to them its measure of activity. What these precise conditions are science does not say, but we know they are present on a limited scale in Memphis this season, sufficiently so for the germs to become active in certain localities. All such places should be marked "dangerous," so that persons passing could keep at such a distance as other localities. The only danger to the chief concern of the community, and in di-rect relation to it comes the question as to the amount necessary to affect prejudiciall go to prove that although the poison may be present in the open air, there is, even in the midst of a violent epidemic, a point of dilution which constitutes the safety point, which cation in confined areas, muschief may be done. This fact seems clearly established in the numerous instances afforded in your vicinity last year, and which no doubt recur to the recollection of your citizens, the most confident that the name of this well known notable of which is found in the case of the gentleman will be ample assurance to his is in the apartment of buildings—these are prompt attention. the places of danger; while in the open air the risk is reduced to a minimum. The practical application of this idea involves that, on the appearance of an epidemic, the in-habitants should desert their houses and take refuge in the open fields, under tents and ar-bors, where there would be little chance of breathing an atmosphere sufficiently charged with the poison to produce malific effects. Memphis has the means of safety at her own doors if she wills it, and has no need to go to the expense of exile, with all of its dis-comforts. She will have, besides, the satislinations to such extreme tests.

It is almost needless to say that this preparation, for an effectual and certain cure for Dysentery, Acute and Chronic Diarrhæz, Flux, and all kindred diseases, far excels any other known remedy. It not only cures the disease, but strengthens the intestinal organs and invigorates the entire system. We do not claim it to cure every thing, but we guarantee it to sure the diseases we name above. For children it has no equal, being both mild and safe in its effects; and for females it is the best strengthener and appetizer known.
